

Hot Breakfasts Offered At 3 Morgan Schools

For some months now, three Morgan County schools have been providing students with hot breakfasts each morning under the national school breakfast program.

Wrigley School was the first to adopt the program and has been serving breakfast to around 65 percent of the school's enrollment since last November 3.

Since that time, Cannel City and Ezel Schools also have adopted the program which is similar to the more widely-known national school hot lunch program.

According to Glen Whitt, principal at Wrigley School, the program has been well received by students and parents alike.

Said Mr. Whitt, "We've had more favorable comments on this program than on any other innovation at the school."

Student Pays 5 Cents

Mr. Whitt believes the popularity of the program is due in part to its low cost per pupil. The cost per breakfast for each student is 5 cents.

This means that at Wrigley, Cannel City and Ezel Schools students are assured of two hot meals a day at a cost of 25 cents per pupil. (Hot lunches cost 20 cents per pupil).

Though students who cannot afford to pay this amount are not turned away, the programs are operated at virtually no cost to the local schools where a large percentage of the enrollment participate, Mr. Whitt said.

Cost of buying and preparing the food is borne in part by the Dana Kidd, fourth grader at Wrigley School, heads for a table to eat a hot breakfast of hotcakes, butter, syrup, sausage, juice, and milk provided by the national school breakfast program adopted last November at the school. Miss Kay Keeton, at right rear, a member of the Neighborhood Youth Corp and director of the breakfast program at Wrigley School, plans menus, cooks breakfasts, and takes care of the bookwork.

Kentucky Department of Education's Division of School Lunch with the remainder coming from students' 5 cent fees. And the larger the percentage of students participating in the programs, the larger the amount of funds received from the State, Whitt said.

It costs about 20 cents to buy food and prepare a typical breakfast. Fifteen cents of this amount is reimbursed by the state to the school. The 15 cent reimbursement is paid for each meal served, even if some students cannot afford to pay.

In addition, USDA surplus foods, such as juices, cereals, flour, etc. are provided to schools participating in the program which further minimizes the cost.

Records show that Kentucky schools participating in the breakfast program actually spend an average of only 13 cents for a typical breakfast, and this has included the cost of milk.

Plenty of Money Available

According to the Division of School Lunch, plenty of money for school breakfasts is available and "is not apt to run out."

A typical breakfast consists of bacon and eggs, orange juice, toast and butter, jelly, and milk.

Another reason for the breakfast program's popularity stems from the early school bus runs for students who attend elementary centers in rural areas. Mothers find it inconvenient to prepare breakfasts for children in time for them to catch an early bus.

At Wrigley, for instance, school buses begin their runs at 6 a.m. By 7:30 all students have been delivered to the school so that buses can transport high school students on to West Liberty by 8 a.m.

A survey conducted by Mr. Whitt revealed that 40 percent of the students at Wrigley School did not eat breakfast before the new program was started.

"In most cases not because breakfast was unavailable, but because they just didn't feel like eating that early or didn't

RUBELLA IMMUNIZATION CLINICS SCHEDULED IN MORGAN APRIL 24

On Friday, April 24, Morgan County joins the nation-wide fight against rubella or 3-day measles. All children in grades one through six, and all children over one year of age may receive the vaccine for the 3-day measles.

The live rubella vaccine was recently developed by researchers at the National Institutes of Health, and has proved to be safe and highly effective in preventing rubella in children.

The program is part of a nationwide effort to control rubella and interrupt transmission of the rubella virus to susceptible pregnant women.

Teams from the Kentucky State Department of Health will be assisting county health department personnel, using jet injectors to administer the vaccine.

No child will be immunized without written parental consent.

Rubella is generally a mild illness in children, but when the disease is acquired by a woman in the early months of pregnancy, it poses a direct hazard to her unborn baby, such as fetal death—or in the case of a live birth—severe defects such as blindness, deafness, heart disease and mental retardation.

Rubella, commonly called "German" or "3-day measles" is not to be confused with "8-day measles" ("old fashioned measles," or "red measles.") Immunization against one will not protect against the other.

TEAM 1—
Anyone desiring further information about the rubella program may call the Morgan County Health Department.

MONEY MANAGEMENT COURSE IS SCHEDULED HERE NEXT MONTH

How do you rate as a family financial manager? Are there enough hours in the day for you to accomplish the task you would like to do? Is it easy for you to make the decisions in distributing the family dollars. Does the family income seem to be exhausted before the next pay day?

Being able to manage the family income is not an easy task, but involves much thought, planning and skill. It is a process of learning through knowledge and experience. This process begins in childhood and extends through the adult stage. It could be the difference of having a new car, home, range, or a college education for your children.

Miss Mary Ann Foudray, County Extension Agent for Home Economics, reports the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service is offering a Money Management Course for the residents of Morgan County. The title is "Key To Managing Your Family Dollars." This involves four sessions which will meet each Tuesday for four weeks. The first session will be Tuesday, May 5th in the West Liberty Library at 7:00 p.m. Anyone interested in improving their management skills in family finances may enroll. This is a non-credit course. There is a small fee for cost of materials.

To learn new ways of how to better stretch the family finances, visit your County Extension Office, located on the second floor of the Court House in West Liberty or call 743-3292, and have your name added to the list of participants.

Registration will extend through April 30.

HAS SWIFT'S LONG LOST LODGE BEEN FOUND AT LAST?

From The Wolfe County News

Rev. Joseph Bunch, of Flat, (located near the Wolfe-Lee line), has made an unusual and exciting announcement. He made the statement that he has had ore tested on his property and the testing device showed very rich ore.

The testing device was brought to the Bunch farm by interested persons from Ohio.

The lode abounds, Mr. Bunch said, up and down the river in the vicinity of the Old Hieronymus Ford, 1/2 to 3/4 miles of very rich silver ore. He said he will start mining as soon as he obtains proper equipment.

He said the proceeds will be used primarily for Christian work—spreading of the Gospel by airways and every other way possible. He also indicated that a portion would be used to help the handicapped, and concluded "God has been so good to us."

In fact, Homer Neely, Sr., former Floyd Countian now residing near Cincinnati, says one test from Arizona indicates there are nearly 60 ounces of gold in a ton of earth on the land.

Other tests work out so low as to indicate only traces, but even those traces could be so located as to be valuable.

The lands are part of a 40,000 acre segment taken under lease nearly two years ago by a combine of Big Sandy-Cincinnati

LATER: Jay Jordan and Homer Neely say they have discovered it takes money to make money and they are now willing to sell mineral rights to their land. They say it will take a minimum of around $500,000 to bring in equipment to begin mining the gold, and they do not have the capital. The 406 acres of property lies on Cam Creek in extreme western Lawrence County between the Elliott County line and Caines Creek in Lawrence County.

men, but those leases were allowed to expire and all outside claims are gone.

Mr. Neely, who has been exuberant during the entire treasure-hunt, said he believes the vein to be 100 feet thick "and I know there are millions of tons in it." He and his wife are closing their grocery at Milford to move to Blaine.

Nicholas Raschella, Louisiana mineral prospector and developer who has been associated in the discovery since Jay Jordan, first brought samples to him for study, said Mr. Neely's move "may be what it takes to develop this property. He's getting people interested."

Though cautious throughout the testing procedure, Mr. Ras-

Gold Strike Report Is Causing Stir

By GEORGE WOLFFORD

BLAINE — Reports from widely-separated laboratories give strong indication gold may exist in commercial quantities on the Jay Jordan farm between Blaine and Sandy Hook.

In fact, Homer Neely, Sr., former Floyd Countian now residing near Cincinnati, says one test from Arizona indicates there are nearly 60 ounces of gold in a ton of earth on the land.

Other tests work out so low as to indicate only traces, but even those traces could be so located as to be valuable.

The 406 acres of property lies on Cam Creek in extreme western Lawrence County between the Elliott County line and Caines Creek in Lawrence County.

UNEARTHED—Homer Neely, Sr., left, and Jay Jordan pull clumps of frozen earth from a spot near the Jordan home on Cam Creek at Blaine. Numerous assays taken on samples of the soil have shown gold, ranging from trace to commercial to rich.

chella said in January, "If this works out the way it looks, this will be the largest body of this ore ever found on this continent."

This writer traveled to the scene with the three men in January to take samples for testing. The samples were taken from three separate sites, each within a mile of the Jordan home. They were submitted to Papucel Testing Laboratories at Cincinnati for analysis. Roland Papucel was one of the original participants in the combine, but now has no financial interest in the lands.

The analysis showed:
Sample 1 (taken from cliff cliff vein), .89 oz. per ton.
Sample 2 (taken from road-side cut), .28 oz. per ton.
Sample 3 (taken from low cut in side of hollow) 1.01 oz. per ton.

Those same samples, submitted to St. Louis Testing Laboratories showed 7.583 oz. for sample No. 1 and 24.208 oz. for sample No. 3, either of which could be considered astounding.

In addition, the samples have turned up quantities of lead, zinc, and silver — any one of which could be commercially developable.

The Jordan farm—406 acres—lies along Sam Creek in Lawrence, not far from the "pipes" of Elliott County where diamonds and other minerals have been prospected for nearly 100 years.

First public notice of the interest in Lawrence County gold came last summer when a Fort Gay man began building a series of sluices and pits for extracting minerals on his farm, much of the leasing mentioned earlier areas, at least partially on finds he reported.

Mr. Neely said he is negotiating with firms in Detroit and Nevada for a mining contract. The owners of the ore would be due one-eighth of its value at the mine face, if normal royalty procedures are followed.

Developing the potential has been a knotty problem of finance. But Mr. Neely said Wednesday, "No stock is for sale." A Colorado equipment firm offers a package mining processing outfit for $100,000, and by working three or four men on the project, a return of $1,000 (Continued on page eight)

Several have complimented the Sunday Bulletin recently. Rev. Lester makes the bulletins interesting as well as informative. He doesn't always have poems, but this being spring and everyone rushing around reminded me of the poem we had in the bulletin last Sunday entitled "Overheard In An Orchard."

"I would really like to know why these anxious humans be hings rush about and worry so?" said the Sparrow to the Robin. "I think it must be that they know no Heavenly Father such as cares for you and me."

The choir is improving due to practice every Wednesday night. Last Sunday's choir special, with Connie Hopkins assisting at the piano, was much improved.

This being spring and baseball season and your reporter being a sports fan, hopes you will excuse mistakes, as it is hard to write, watch and listen to the baseball game all at the same time.

See you in church Sunday.

What Farmers Are Concerned About

Problems that Kentucky farmers are thinking about are different from their concerns of previous years.

Commissioner of Agriculture Robert Miller is holding a series of agriculture institutes across the state. And the two held in Eastern Kentucky, at Richmond and Morehead, show a preponderance of discussion about new problems—the growing threat against burley tobacco, and what they can do to help preserve the crop, how best to use pasture acres in a growing shortage of farm labor, and what new farm enterprises can be made profitable.

Commissioner Miller in commenting on these institutes gives an idea of what Kentucky farmers are thinking—

"Most burley growers and agency people generally agree that we need controls on the amount of tobacco sold as well as the acreage grown. While several proposals or ideas have been presented to serve this purpose, practically all have the common objective of regulating the total pounds that reach the market.

"Burley growers and those associated with other segments of the industry are desirous that we define and isolate any elements in burley that might be harmful to human health. At the same time, many feel that while we are working to solve some of the problems facing burley, we should be looking to enterprises which will take up the economic slack left by a decline in income from tobacco.

"Because some 60 percent of our cropland should be utilized for the growing of hay and pasture, Kentucky farmers should look to expanded livestock enterprises. Kentucky catmen are gaining very favorable recognition as producers of feeder calves—and our numbers are growing rapidly.

"Kentucky is growing as a center of feeder pig production. While our sheep industry has been losing ground, specialists in this field see many farmers as missing a good profit making opportunity with this enterprise. In the area of poultry, Kentucky is not producing enough eggs to supply instate markets.

"Dairying, already a major part of our agriculture, is in good position to capitalize on the southward shift of the Nation's dairying operations.

"Horticultural and specialized crops, and greenhouses, offer opportunities for farmers with expertise with these projects. These operations should receive added consideration, particularly from those with small farms.

"In addition to looking at "where" we can expand our agricultural economy we must also consider "how." The matters of labor and capital are paramount, and without management capabilities equal to the task, no expansion should be considered."

OIL PATCH

By HAROLD EKAS, Geologist
Kylachian Petroleum Surveys
White Oak, Ky., 41474

WEIR / CUYAHOGA SANDSTONE

Now with no break between or no more than five feet of shale we come to Weir Sand, a seemingly variable in several respects: For one I've seen three differentials in this pay in the same area. Variable as to thickness—thins on highs; I've had from 10 feet to over 107 feet of Weir Sand in the area. Tendency to steal the oil back there being crevices some places in bottom of this sand. Has been and still is one of East Kentucky's best oil producers.

Now we come to the Sunbury Shale, either brown or black and a lot of times greasy with a show of oil. It runs from 8 to 40 feet in the area. Weir is generally a conate type sand. Some of the best wells I've seen have had some water.

Weir is even bedded argillaceous sandstones alternating shales, less shale and more sand under cover. Fractures well and shoots well, especially with lamp shot. Du Pont EL explosives two to three quarts per foot of sand, according to hardness of the sand, more for harder, less for softer sands.

Floods excellently by first gas flooding or repressuring and a bit later follow with water flood and don't pressure the well too high; give it time to readjust. Water goes all the way to low on structure then fills slowly, pushing oil up structure. Normally takes 2, 3, even 4 years for best results to show up after a flood is started.

In fracturing the Weir pay, a real good pay may break at 900 lbs., though normally it runs from 1100 to 2200 lbs.

Weir Sand is long lived producer, about the only way I can give a fair outline of this group of sands is to take them group wise as one or the other of the sands cutting out, even being replaced with limestones. They are all variables more or less. This for the first three sands—Heener, Big Injun and Squaw—under:

2/3 of Elliott County.
1/6 of Carter County.
1/4 of Boyd County.
1/2 of Morgan County.

Under a very small portion of Wolfe County, probably even less than 1/10 of county.

1/2 of Owsley and Lee Counties.

1/3 of McCreary County.
1/10 of Pulaski County.

About 1/3 of Rockcastle County.

All of the counties from above outline eastward to West Virginia, southeast to Virginia, west to Tennessee, all in Eastern Kentucky area.

Now for the Weir Sand area: Under all of Greenup, Carter, Boyd, Elliott, Lawrence, Johnson.
1/2 of Morgan, Powell, Lee, Wolfe and Rowan Counties.
2/3 of Floyd and Menifee Counties.
1/3 of Perry and Lewis Counties.

1/2 of Knott County.
To Ohio on the north; to West Virginia on the east; and to Virginia in only one small area to the southeast.

Some strong evidence of secondary tilting of Weir Sand in the not too long ago.

Water lows do not conform with known structure in lower, older, rocks; oil close to gas in relation to lower rocks.

Seemingly Weir Sand oil had been on the larger structures, smaller domes being non-productive as to oil.

I have done a lot of research on Weir Sand and in some instances, or I should say, areas, acidizing will work on the pay due to some lime in the sand.

Next week: Sunbury Shale, Lower Waverlain - Kinderhook, Berea, and sometimes Bedford Sands.

OBSERVATIONS AND PREDICTIONS

POWER OF THE PRESS

This paper recently printed single-paragraph item about the re-publishing of Ely's "History of Big Sandy" and noting that the Ely's News Stand at Louisville had the revised edition for sale. Now comes a note from Ern (Compton) telling us he got two cash sales from people who read the item — one from Ohio and one from California. Ern bought 60 of the reprints and told us he has sold all but six—at $13.31 post-paid.

A NEW LAW — Under a new law enacted by the Kentucky General Assembly Kentucky farmers after Sept. 1 will be restricted in the use of DDT. After that date DDT cannot be used except for control of household pests, termites, hats, rats and mice.

FARM SHRINKAGE — The Bureau of Labor Statistics forecasts an increase of 22% in America's work force by 1980, made up as follows—48 million new workers in white-collar jobs, 11 million in blue-collar jobs, 9 million in services, and only 300,000 in agriculture. There will be a surplus of teachers by 1980 because of fewer children, says the BLS.

PRISONER MOVED AFTER THREAT OF JAILBREAK

(The Ashland Independent)

Authorities in Elliott County, acting on information that a prisoner was to be taken from the Elliott County Jail, converged in a group on the courthouse Thursday night, stayed a while, then transferred the jail's lone prisoner to West Liberty for safekeeping before going home.

Taken to West Liberty was Albert Cline of Ashland, one of five men charged with armed robbery of Bill Gibson last summer. Mr. Gibson lives about four miles east of Sandy Hook on the Middle Fork Road.

After the courthouse closed Thursday, rumor seeped through the county that Cline was to be sprung from jail.

Jailer Everett Wright noted the front door to the courthouse had been jimmied the night before, rendering it unworkable.

In addition, a pair of mysterious motorists kept surveillance at the home of Sheriff Hesse! Ison, apparently to determine his whereabouts.

Authorities learned four men from Ironton, Ohio were to perpetrate the jail break, according to County Judge Neely Adkins, Jr., who ordered the transfer.

Be sure to check your home appliances and lights for frayed wires. If you find wires which should be repaired or replaced, be sure to do so immediately to avoid trouble before it happens.

Many Are Losing Social Security Benefits In Area

"We must stop the loss of disability benefits," Thomas B. Thompson, manager of the Ashland district social security office, said this week. Thompson explained that too many people in the Ashland district who are too disabled to work are not filing for benefits, and are actually losing the social security protection they have earned.

Benefits are lost because a person, unable to work, feels that he will be able to return to his job soon, thus he puts off contacting the social security office. "An individual should never do this," said Thompson, but "should inquire about disability benefits if he stays off the job for more than 30 days because of sickness or an injury."

Visit or call your nearest social security office for more information about disability benefits. The Ashland office is located at 1816 Carter Avenue, and the telephone number is 325-7666. The office is open Monday through Friday from 8:45 in the morning to 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

They Want Back on the Farm

(The Christian Science Monitor)

As America's population ruminates, its longing for the rural life gets stronger.

These two paradoxical trends were evident in the latest Gallup Poll on where Americans would most like to live. In the past four years, those wanting to escape cities or suburbs went up 6 percent. More than half the nation would now rather live in the country. It is also interesting that the number wanting to live in smaller towns held constant at 31 percent. Thus the entire 6 percent of the new would-be urban fleers would head for the out-country, mostly to farms.

This longing to live a rural life runs counter to the great migration from farm to city during the past three decades. The United States farm population dropped from 30 million to fewer than 10 million.

Crowding, crime, discolored and distasteful water and air, which now denote urban life—these can but heighten men's longings for open space, for growing things.

STATE REVENUE COMMISSIONER James Luckett said his department, as empowered by law, may order property assessment increases this year in counties where property valuation standards fall short of the court-ordered 100 per cent level. It is too early, he said, to tell which counties will get the state-imposed increases, but recent figures show 51 per cent are liable unless their assessments have been raised since 1968.

BOYD CIRCUIT JUDGE J. GIFFENE ROBINSON ruled that Ashland's third property tax increase violated the restrictions in the General Assembly's "rollback law." In declaring the 9.8 per cent boost illegal, the judge said the 1965 Legislature stipulated that local taxes could not be raised more than 10 per cent in each of the following two years. Ashland authorized its third increase in April, 1969, bringing the rate to 57 cents per $100 valuation.

BUSINESS HERE AND HEREAFTER

HERBICIDE PRICE UP

Dow Chemical Co. increased its price of herbicides 2.4, 5-T Wednesday last week. That was the same day the Federal Government banned the herbicide from use as a home weed killer. (The ban doesn't affect supplies already in hands of suppliers.) The government says the herbicide may cause birth defects in animals. Dow Chemical said possibly 90% of 2,4, 5-T is used for brush control, usually in such areas as railways and utility rights-of-way, and therefore it isn't affected by the ban.

POSTAL INCREASE

The President's second recommendation for increasing postal rates proposes an increase of 50 percent for newspapers and magazines (second-class), but only a 33 percent increase for third-class mail, often referred to as "junk mail". The public orders second-class mail, but most third-class "junk mail" is sent to them without their ordering or requesting it — and most of it is thrown into wastepaper baskets.

New York Firm Financing Deep Oil Probe In Elliott

Co. Prexy Predicts Sharp Increase In Ky. Deep Tests In '71

It was learned last week that the deep exploratory oil well being drilled at Stephens in eastern Elliott County is being financed by Monitor Petroleum Corp., an independent oil company with headquarters in New York City.

A letter to the editor of this newspaper, received last week from the firm's president, confirms much of what already has been reported and clears up some minor inaccuracies concerning the deep probe.

The letter follows—
Monitor Petroleum Corp.
521 Fifth Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10017
April 15, 1970

The Elliott County News Courier Publishing Co.
West Liberty, Kentucky 41472
Attention: Mr. Earl Kinner
Dear Mr. Kinner:

Monitor Petroleum Corp. has made location and is preparing to drill a basement test on the Cecil Ison Lease, 8-T-70, Elliott County. The lease is part of an 18,000 acre unit in Elliott, Carter, and Lawrence Counties in which Monitor has entered into a Farmout Agreement with Ashland Oil, Sun Oil Company, and Pennzoil United Corp.

The deep exploratory well, one of two scheduled to be drilled in Eastern Kentucky by Monitor during the first half of 1970, will test the thick sequence of Middle and Lower Cambrian sediments postulated to exist on the downthrown side of a major basement fault.

The estimated total depth of the No. 1 Ison will be 8500 feet, and drilling time should be 45 to 60 days. The contractor whose rig will drill this well for Monitor is Slim Ren Drilling Company of London, Kentucky. Confirming earlier speculation that this well will be drilled "light," this simply means that pertinent geological information and results of tests will not generally be released until such time as the data has been put to its maximum use by Monitor.

Monitor Petroleum Corp. is an independent oil company with interests and production in Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Indiana and Kentucky. The District Office responsible for exploration in Eastern Kentucky is located in Owensboro. Initial studies by Monitor of the large Eastern Cambrian Basin, now divided into the Michigan, Illinois, and Appalachian Basins, began in 1960. Monitor feels that a significant number of Kentucky wells will be drilled through the Cambrian in 1970, and a sharp increase in deep tests will follow in 1971. There is every reason to believe that major oil reserves of oil and gas will be created as a result of this increasing Cambrian exploration.

Yours very truly,
J. Donald Silberman

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES—

DEMONSTRATIONS OF NEW WEEVIL RESISTANT ALFALFA SET IN MORGAN

BY DOUGLAS HOWARD
County Extension Agent

Alfalfa production may well be on the comeback in Kentucky. Alfalfa, known as the queen of the forage crop in terms of quality and yield, in recent years has taken a drastic decrease in acreage in the Eastern United States including Kentucky due to the alfalfa weevil. It may be that we are learning to live with the weevil, learning how to partially control it chemically and ultimately the answer may be resistant varieties.

Demonstrations of an acre of syn-W now known as weevilcheck were seeded with standard recommended varieties on the farm of Harold Rose, Ezel, and the Darrell Pelfrey-Norman Sheet, farm, Zag. This spring seedlings are being made on these same two farms of another weevil resistant variety, Teem. In addition to the test demonstrations of weevil resistant varieties Mr. Rose and Mr. Pelfrey are seedling additional acreage of standard recommended varieties.

Monday, April 27, these fields will be inspected by researchers and Extension specialists from the University of Kentucky and by the plant breeder who developed the new weevil resistant varieties, Dr. Robert Baker, Director, Farmers Forage Research Corporation. Dr. Bobby Pass, chairman of UK's Entomology Department; Dr. Rudy Scheibner, Extension Specialist in Entomology; Warren Thompson, UK Forage Specialist and perhaps others will be at the Harold Rose farm between 3:00 and 3:30 p.m., and from there we will go to the Sheets-Pelfrey farm in Zag.

Those interested in learning to produce the highest quality forage as a step in increasing the livestock numbers in Morgan County may well learn from these men and the demonstrations. Doug Howard, Morgan County Extension Agent, encourages all interested to be present.

New Pipeline To Be Installed

PRENCHBURG, KY. — Kentucky Gas and Transmission Corp. plans to install 6.8 miles of 30-inch pipeline in Menifee and Montgomery counties to meet its growing requirements for natural gas. The new line will be laid parallel to the corporation's 14-inch and 20-inch lines and will enable the company to meet its service contracts to users in Cincinnati and Covington as well as Owensville, Mt. Sterling and Carlisle. Contractor at $1.4 million is Kenton Meadow Co. of Charleston, W. Va.

DR. GRANT RICE DIES AT AGE OF 97 YEARS

PANEL PONDER'S ON FARM BILL

The federal farm program of voluntary controls and price supports for key farm commodities expires at the end of this year. And the House Agriculture Committee and the Nixon administration have been wrestling for months over a new bill but still have a long way to go, according to reports from Washington.

In February the Agriculture Committee sent Congress a draft of a bill which it termed a consensus. But it was blasted as "inadequate, unsound and dangerously political" by five major farm organizations. Since then the committee has been working on a three-year program to run from 1971 to 1973 rather than a permanent program.

Still unresolved are such issues as feed grains, wheat, cotton, land retirement, limitation on payments to any one farm, and whether to combine the food stamp program with work restrictions.

The committee, which began working on the package last June, has come to general terms on sections dealing with wool and dairy products, sale of surplus commodities abroad and the food stamp proposal.

At the moment, cotton seems to be the biggest hang-up. There is no clear indication when all the pieces will fall together.

NIXON ASKS NEW POSTAGE HIKES

President Nixon last week proposed an alternate plan to Congress to increase postage rates to meet the pay increase granted postal employees after the recent strike.

Nixon first asked for a first class rate of 10 cents with increases of 12% for second class matter and 5% for third class mail (often referred to as "junk mail").

The alternate plan calls for an increase of first class mail to 8 cents per letter, and an increase of 30% for second class mail consisting of magazines and newspapers; and a 23% increase for third class "junk mail".

The new rate recommendations are figured to bring in $1.5 billion additional postal revenue. This would be used to pay for the 6% pay increase, retroactive to Dec. 27, for all government employees and an additional 6% pay boost for postal workers alone upon enactment of a postal reorganization plan.

Congress resisted the 104 first class proposal, but it seems willing to pass the president's alternate plan.

A word to the wise is sufficient. Safety is the work. Many hidden hazards lie about the home. Take a safety check of your home, examining especially for electrical equipment, medicines, slippery rugs, fire hazards and the like.

Magoffin Native Dies In Wreck

Darryl Wayne Conley, 19, of Stanton and native of Magoffin county, was killed April 8 when his car struck a bridge on KY-15 a half mile south of Stanton. State Police said Conley was attempting to go around a car driven by Roger Dale Brewer of Stanton as they traveled south on KY-15 and that the Conley car was torn in half when it skidded into the side of a bridge that carries the Parkway over KY-15. Conley was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Conley of Stanton. He was born in Magoffin.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

The Ashland social security office may be getting in touch with some of the miners and miners' widows who applied for the new black lung benefits to get additional information or to arrange for medical tests.

Thomas B. Thompson, social security district manager, said that the medical standards for determining whether a miner's disability or death resulted from black lung disease have been issued by the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. He stated that this is a major step in carrying out the black lung benefit provisions of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969.

Steps have already been taken to obtain medical and other evidence from existing records, Thompson said, in order to help speed the processing of the claims. He emphasized that persons who have applied for the black lung benefits need not recontact the social security office unless asked to do so.

"All claims will be processed as rapidly as possible, and applicants will be notified of the decision by the Bureau of Disability Insurance at Social Security Headquarters in Baltimore, where the final decisions are made," he said.

More than 130,000 persons have already requested these benefits through social security offices around the country. However, only about 165 requests have been filed here in the Ashland district since December 30, 1969, when President Nixon signed the law providing the new benefits.

Benefits under the new law amount to $136 a month for a miner or his widow. Payments are higher if there are dependents (wife or children), ranging up to a maximum of $272 a month for a family of four or more. However, if a miner or his widow is getting workmen's compensation, unemployment compensation, or disability insurance benefits under State law, black lung benefits may be reduced in the amount being paid under these programs.

A miner or widow who is determined eligible will receive a check covering all the months back to the time he or she filed a request for black lung benefits. But no payment can be made for the time before a application is filed.

For this reason, it is important that anyone who might be eligible, but has not already requested benefits, contact the nearest social security office for help in applying. He can phone or write the office, or if it is more convenient, visit the office in person. A delay in applying for benefits in writing could cause some loss of payments.

Exams For Military Academies Are Set Perkins Announces

Washington D. C. — Congressman Carl D. Perkins announces there will be a preliminary Civil Service examination on Tuesday, July 7, 1970, for young men who wish to be nominated for appointment next year to the United States Air Force, Military Academy, or Merchant Marine Academy. The examination will be repeated later in the year.

The purpose of the examination is to provide an objective testing method which will aid Congressman Perkins in the selection of candidates to the four academies. The tests will be given in Ashland, Hazard, Maysville, Paintsville, Pikeville, Lexington and Richmond as well as in other examining centers through the nation.

Any young man living in the 7th Congressional District who is interested in an academy appointment should notify Congressman Perkins, Room 2232 Rayburn Office Building, Washington, D. C. 20515.

RESIDENTS OF SALYERSVILLE JOIN HANDS TO HELP YOUNGSTER

SALYERSVILLE — For the second time in as many years, a the sandy community is moving to help a child return to a normal life.

This time the community is Salyersville. Residents have mounted an intensive campaign to provide financial help for three-year-old Sonya Jill Whitaker.

The little girl faces a series of 50 or more operations that will hopefully give her the ability to speak.

Jill has suffered from "papillomatosis" or congenital polyps of the trachea since she was four months old.

She is presently receiving treatment at the Children's Hospital, in Columbus, Ohio, along with 12 other persons suffering from the rare defect.

Remembering the work of Salyersville Jaycees last year in raising $25,000 to aid 15-year-old Keith Williamson in securing a kidney transplant, the family sent out an urgent call for help when it was discovered that the operations might aid the little girl.

Jill has undergone 30 operations already, including two on Easter weekend — each costing about $300. She returns to the operating room again on April 19.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Whitaker, have learned that Jill might be cured in a year if regular surgery is continued.

Mr. Whitaker, formerly employed at Ward Manufacturing, has been working part-time as a rural mail carrier since the factory closed at Salyersville.

The surgery is performed to remove small growths similar to warts that form in Jill's throat, blocking her breathing passage. Doctors have permanently inserted a tracheotomy tube in her larynx and connected it to a collar so that Jill might continue to breathe freely in each operation, newly formed polyps are removed.

Magoffin Jaycees have taken up the cause and on Easter weekend sold sandwiches and donuts while conducting an all-night coffee stop for the holiday travelers. The next day the group sponsored a traffic stop in Salyersville to solicit donations.

Both events were successful, but the receipts will only begin to care for the smiling, blue-eyed child who can't say "Thank you."

Anyone wishing to help with the Jill Whitaker fund may do so by sending contributions to The Magoffin County Jaycees, care of The Salyersville Independent, or directly to Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Whitaker, Box 173, Salyersville.

RED RIVER CANOE RACE TO HIGHLIGHT WEEKEND OF ACTIVITIES APRIL 23-26

Queen To Be Chosen April 23, and Upper Gorge Trip April 25

This year's fourth annual Red River Canoe Race is to be the official Kentucky Championship race for 1970.

To be held Sunday, April 26, the event will highlight a weekend of activities and festivities at Campton, Stanton and in the beautiful Red River Gorge.

Sponsoring the race are the Wolfe County Kiwanis Club, the Wolfe County and Powell County Jaycees, the Menifee County Lions Club, and the University of Kentucky Extension Service. Also providing financial assistance is the Region Ten Tourism Committee.

Another highlight of the weekend will be a sight-seeing trip through the rugged "Roughs of Red" in the upper gorge. This event, to be held Saturday, is being sponsored by the Wolfe County Kiwanis Club.

Koomer Ridge Camping Area at Pine Ridge will be the race headquarters.

A Red River Canoe Race Queen will be selected Thursday, April 23, at Stanton. The Wolfe County Kiwanis Club and the Wolfe County Jaycees are sponsoring entries.

The queen and runner-up will reign over the Canoe Race activities. Orientation for the exploratory sightseeing trip through the upper gorge is set for Friday night, April 24, and orientation for the race is set for Saturday night, April 25, at the Koomer Ridge Camping Area.

There will be special mountain style music programs and color slides shown of the gorge and last year's activities during the orientation sessions.

Canoeists who plan to participate in the race are asked to register at the Koomer Ridge headquarters between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. Saturday, April 25.

This trip is recommended for experienced canoeists only, since the route, though uniquely beautiful, is extremely rugged.

Following completion of Sunday's race, a trophy dinner will be held at the Lions Club Park at Stanton. A fish fry will be provided for participants and fish will be on sale for spectators.

Walnut trophies will be awarded to each paddler finishing in the first, second, and third place canoe in each of the four classes: men's junior, men's mixed men, and mixed tandem.

The purpose of the race is to encourage amateur sportsmanship and to promote the Red River Gorge area and the recreational use of all of Kentucky's scenic rivers.

For Saturday's upper gorge trip, specific duties have been assigned the following members of the Wolfe County Kiwanis Club:

E. E. Bach, guide to Spradlin Bridge; Registration, Earl May, Jr.; Orientation at Koomer Ridge, John Caudill and E. E. Bach; Radio Contact, J. Ed Yeager; Sweep (follow-up boat) Mike Sutton, assisted by Danny Maddox; Ambulance on stand-by, Marvin Alexander; generator for lights, Herman Hull; tokens for participants, Holmes Bowman. Overall Exploratory Trip Chairman, Taylor Booth.

LEONIDAS MAYS

In remembrance of our dear, sweet Dad, Leonidas Mays, who would have been 87 years old April 17. He was a native of Elliott County, Kentucky where he resided all his life. He passed away January 30, 1970, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Roberta Neece, at Fairborn, Ohio.

A precious one from us is gone. A voice we loved is still. A place is vacant in our home. Which never can be filled.

Though on earth he is no more, But in memory he is with us. As always before.

Sadly missed by his wife, Bessie, and daughters

A FEW STILL GATHER WILD GREENS BUT THE NUMBER IS DWINDLING

By Nevyle Shackelford, Staff Writer, UK College of Agriculture

LEXINGTON, Ky. — In the early days of North American settlement, newcomers from Europe were amazed at the bewildering variety of potherbs (now known as wild salad) of which, even today, our meadows, woodlands, and streambanks produce in superabundance.

Despite food shortages, however, the colonials did not readily take to this available and nutritious food supply. They were unsure as to which of the unfamiliar plants were fit to eat and in this respect got little help from the Indian. Most Indians detested salad greens as heartily as the average young American male detests spinach today and usually would not eat them except as a last resort. Thus it was a long time before these pioneers learned how to cull wild greens from the field and forest as a supplement to their diet.

According to some historians, wild green gathering and eating originated at Boonesboro right here in Kentucky. After a long winter of deer meat, salt pork, and hominy, and with their systems desperately craving fresh vegetables, women of the fort tending cattle, decided that whatever their cows ate, they could also eat. So they started gathering these plants and found many of them appetizing and healthful.

At this time of year, even in these affluent times, a few country women carrying baskets and armed with paring knives, sally forth to look for wild greens. But their numbers grow smaller with each succeeding year. This is not because people—especially farm people—have lost their taste for such humble fare, but because, as it was in the beginnings of these United States, many of the younger farm wives do not know what plants are fit to eat. They failed to get this knowledge while growing up.

And so, it seems, history has completed yet another cycle. There are dozens of edible wild plants, but the ones most commonly gathered now, and were first gathered by pioneer women, are upland cress, lamb's quarter, wild lettuce, dandelion, wild mustard, shepherd's purse, peppercress, evening primrose, poke, broadleaf plantain, and purslane. All of these greens are considered as weeds and are easiest to identify. They are best as wild greens when picked early in the spring and prepared for the table by cooking in a pressure cooker or a covered skillet. As the spring advances, they become woody and unpalatable.

For more information on how to cook wild greens, it is suggested that those interested see their Home Demonstration Agent. To help identify these plants, procure Extension bulletin, "Weeds of the Southern United States," from your County Agent.

Wild greens are more than just a novelty dish. They are nourishing food and a very important wild resource. With population increasing as they are, it is not unlikely that these wild plants may sometime be as eagerly sought as they were in the days of the early pioneer.

Grist Mill Was Important Enterprise In Early Kentucky

WATER MILL — In the early days of Kentucky settlement, a grist mill was usually the first business enterprise to become established in a community. This copy of an ancient photograph will give an idea of how most of these mills appeared.

BY NEVYLE SHACKELFORD

Staff Writer

UK College of Agriculture

CAMPTON, KY. — In the pioneer days of Kentucky settlement, millers ranked in importance with schoolteachers and preachers. Just as teaching and preaching required some skills in order to provide food for the mind and soul, so did milling which provided food for the stomach.

Actually in those early days, a miller outranked the teacher and preachers, but this, of course, was no reflection upon the worth of these two professions. It was more a matter of expediency. In its beginnings, a new settlement or community could get by for a time without a school or a church, but it could hardly go for long without bread. As a consequence, when settlers set out for new lands, a miller and his millstones rode on the lead wagon or ox cart.

Then upon reaching their destination, a site on a stream with a proper "fall" was selected and a mill erected. One such mill once stood on the banks of Lower Devil's Creek some 15 miles south of here. It was originally built and operated around the mid-1800's by Uncle Billy Booth, formerly of Virginia, and common ancestor of many of the Booths now living in Lee and Wolfe counties.

This mill had an "overshot" wheel and was largely constructed of wood. Even the meshing gears that turned the ponderous millstones were made of wooden pegs fitted into wheels sawn from logs.

Grinding grain on such a mill was a slow process, but bread from the meal was of superior taste. There was little flavor-degenerating heat produced by the slowly turning granite burrs.

In the tradition of all other millers, Uncle Billy collected "toll" which was a small portion of every bushel of wheat or corn brought in. What part of this toll he didn't need for himself, he sold or bartered and was thus able to make a good living for himself and his family.

As related by Taylor Booth, one of Uncle Billy's numerous descendants, this old mill became an important meeting place for the community and shortly after its establishment, a church was erected on the creek banks nearby. It may have been pure coincidence which can explain everything while proving nothing, but at the time there were some who believed the church was a factor in the destruction of the mill.

According to Taylor, a few years after its establishment, a schism developed in the church—a separation so disruptive that the membership was split right down the middle. This brought dire warnings from outsiders that a house divided could not stand, and sure enough it didn't. One warm night in the month of June of the year 1882, there was a flood on Lower Devil's Creek that washed away not only the church, but also Uncle Billy's grist mill.

Deprived of spiritual comfort and the ingredients for biscuit, cornpone, and johnnycake, the community was in a bad shape indeed, but the situation didn't last for long. The people immediately pitched in and helped Uncle Billy rebuild his mill, and research into the story leads to the belief that the religious disagreement resulted in two churches instead of one. The church houses, however, were erected this time on hilltops well above the high water line.

Uncle Billy's second mill lasted up until the turn of the century, but is gone now and only a few old timbers and a faded yellow, 60-year-old photograph remain as visual evidence of its existence. Some say, though, that on warm summer nights when the moon is down and whisperwills call from the timber, there can be heard low groans coming from the site—sounds such as are made by the turning of ungreased mill wheels.

But this, of course, is only imagination. Grist mills, as far as anyone knows, do not produce ghosts.

Wishes to Jerry Stecy and Wanda Harvey, who were married April 14 at Clinton, Va.
